About Helix Energy Solutions Group

Helix Energy Solutions Group is a unique member of the deepwater offshore energy industry with an integrated business model providing world-class for life of field service to energy producing companies while producing oil and gas from our own fields. This two-stranded strategy sets Helix apart from our peers, who typically elect to be either a service contractor or producer. Helix was a primary responder to the BP Macondo incident and post Macondo, initiated an emergency response system to serve Gulf of Mexico in the event of a similar future accident. This system has been key to continued oil and gas exploration post Macondo.
